Serve Midlands Conference to Focus on Inclusion in Volunteering

(LINCOLN, NEB.) Make plans to attend the free 2013 Serve Midlands Inclusion Conference on Wednesday, March 6 at the University of Nebraska Omaha, Thompson Alumni Center, Omaha, Nebraska. ServeNebraska and Volunteer Iowa are presenting this free conference to learn how people with disabilities can strengthen communities and themselves through volunteering and national service. Capacity is limited to the first 150 attendees. Register at www.serve.nebraska.gov, registration is required to attend.

The keynote speaker is Joseph H. Evans, PhD, in the Psychology Department at Munroe-Meyer Institute (MMI), University of Nebraska Medical Center. Dr. Evans is a leader regionally and nationally in creatively identifying service opportunities that benefit and serve those with disabilities. He has consulted nationally and is the Program Director for MMI AmeriCorps.

This conference will feature a full day of workshops on a range of topics for professionals and volunteers, visits to vendors, lunch and a service project. Conference sessions are tailored to: National Service Participants and Staff, Veterans, Military and Military Families, Professionals, Volunteers, Students, and Families. If you are interested in being a vendor or have questions about the conference contact, Cathy Plager at cathleen.plager@nebraska.gov or 402-471-6226.

ServeNebraska mobilizes Nebraskans to strengthen their communities through volunteering, collaboration and national service programs. To learn more about Volunteer Iowa, visit www.volunteeriowa.org.
